USC-CSE needs a better way to organize, access, enter and maintain its Technical Reports system. The system should be web-based, and easy to use and administer. It should be Web-based, and easy to use and administer. It should accept a mix of electronic formats, including scanned versions of pre-electronic papers and standard reference citation information. It should be compatible with the current CSE website, and support search by a number of attributes, including year, author, and standard keywords. A possible output is a suitably organized annual summary of the reports.
